

Abstract

The application relates to fasteners for use in securing two objects together with a fastening element and to an inflatable device incorporating such fasteners. In one embodiment, a fastener for use with a fastening element includes a housing sized and adapted to mate with a fastening element and a latch positioned relative to the housing to retain the fastening element within the housing.

096225 052201